How well do you know the NHS?

Are you new to the NHS or perhaps brought up abroad and are completely non-plussed by this UK obsession with a healthcare service? Learn a little more about the National Health Service – take a look at our suggested reading list for facts and figures, staff recollections and patient stories.

Make sure you're making the most of your Health Library

Read this blog post to learn where you can get a quick overview of the support we provide to NHS staff.

Whether you already work for our NHS partners or are starting a new job soon make sure you make the most of your Health Library service.

New doctors at UHNM can learn more about the Health Library

If you have just started work at UHNM this Summer, take a quick look at the Health Library video wall. You'll learn how the Health Library can help you by providing access to essential resources and services to save you time.

Get the latest evidence updates via KnowledgeShare

Stay up-to-date with the latest published evidence. Save time by getting evidence sent straight to your inbox: save effort by getting tailored content linked to your interests. Our KnowledgeShare evidence updates service is available to NHS staff and Keele University academic staff working with our NHS partners. Read our blog post to learn more and to sign-up.

New etutorial! Searching with Cinahl

Cinahl is one of our key nursing databases. You can find a wealth of information and articles on specialist nursing topics, essential for your studies or work-based projects. Learn about our new etutorial Searching with Cinahl to learn more about how the key features can help you to get to the information you need quickly.

Key resources to support key topics

We regularly highlight resources available to support specialties, conditions and diseases as well as staff professions. Here are a few we have shared recently:
